Throughout the length and breadth of this grand old land of ours—America—we see the race moving along with the ever increasing tide of humanity, keeping step with their fellow citizens. We are ever moving, moving forward toward and along the open road of progress. True, some are more fleet of foot than others, while still others herald their advance with the aid of blaring the many trumpets, but still they forward march and none are far behind.

As we turn the pages of progress of the year 1920 we are greeted with many familiar incidents. We tire of reading the much chronicled advancement of the Race. We are fatigued. We lie back in our Morris chair and are soon lost in slumberland. We dream. Like moving pictures the events of 1920 parade past our review stand of memory. Ah, the Black man! There he goes, marching along the highway of economics, industrial, social and political progress! What a glorious line of march! Wonder of Wonders! Such grand and happy mortals never before marched shoulder to shoulder onward to a common goal. Listen to the cheers of the multitude of happy spectators! Bravo! Bravo! they shout. Then all is quiet. Can it be possible that this multitude howling humanity has lost its voice? Surely not, yet there they stand, speechless. What's this they are intently gazing at? What is the inscription upon this banner that causes such awe-provoking silence? Now nearer they come. Let us read the banner. In sturdy, golden letters we see the inscription: "The Kansas City Monarchs, 1920." Hats are in the air; again the explosion-like yells of the pent-up feelings of the watching horde. This time it is still louder. Louder, louder until it echoes over the City, this time the shouts of the white fans are mingled with those of their fellow fans.

Truly the Monarchs are Monarchs of all they survey. Hurrah for the Monarchs!

Mrs. Sam Ella Kalls the president presided. Several donations were given to sick people. Mrs. Henry Green of Ottumwa, Ia., was a visitor and made some encouraging remarks. THE DAWN OF A NEW DAY.

By A. D. Williams.

1418 Michigan.
"The old order changeth," and in its latest process of changing has brought about many new and startling things. Following in the wake of the world war with its numerous changes and rearrangements that have affected the entire world came the change heretofore reckoned as impossible—the changing of the old order among Negroes. But this is the dawn of a new day, especially among progressive Negroes. This is an era of changes. An era of progress. It is the beginning of the greatest era of racial progress the world has ever known. On every side we see the rush and hustle of a busy people each in his chosen vocation progressing.
